About Atlanta Life

In 1905, a former slave, Alonzo Franklin Herndon, founded what would become the Atlanta Life Insurance Company. Mr. Herndon, who was Atlanta's richest Black man at the time, purchased a small benevolent association for $140 and, with the acquisition and reorganization of two other companies in September of that year, formed the Atlanta Mutual Insurance Association.

Organized to provide sick and death benefits to African-Americans for low weekly assessments of five to twenty-five cents, the Association would grow to become one of the largest Black owned and operated financial institutions in America.

Today...

Atlanta Life still stands strong and continues to serve its customers by offering an array of products and services to best suit their needs. To learn about our parent company and its subsidiaries, visit our website at www.atlantalive.com.
